

Rev. Dr. Alexander Gee — Speaker Bio (Sept 2026)

Rev. Dr. Alexander Gee is a pastor, social entrepreneur, author, and nationally recognized community leader whose life's work sits at the intersection of faith, culture, leadership, and community transformation.

A Madison native and the city's longest-serving faith leader, Dr. Gee has nearly 46 years of ministry experience and serves as Founder and Senior Pastor of Fountain of Life Church, a vibrant multiracial, multigenerational, and multi-socioeconomic congregation. A devoted follower of Jesus for more than 50 years, his faith has been the foundation of his lifelong commitment to developing people, strengthening communities, and challenging systems that inhibit human flourishing.

Dr. Gee is Founder and CEO of The Center for Black Excellence and Culture, a groundbreaking 37,500-square-foot, debt-free cultural destination made possible through his leadership of a campaign that raised more than $33 million in just over four years. The Center celebrates Black excellence while advancing cultural innovation, leadership development, research, artistic expression, intergenerational connection, and community well-being.

He also founded The Nehemiah Center for Urban Leadership Development in 1992 and now serves as its President Emeritus. He hosts the award-winning podcast Black Like Me with Dr. Alex Gee and is the author of two books.

Dr. Gee's leadership, teaching, consulting, and humanitarian work have taken him across North America and to Africa and Asia. He holds degrees from UW–Madison and Bakke Graduate University, received an Honorary Doctorate in Humane Letters from UW–Madison, and serves as Adjunct Faculty in UW–Madison's Department of African American Studies.
